ALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 9.—Albert of his indebted to you for so many benefits, will be always thankful to you, and I hope that the great United States will always support our small country."

Char es T. Gwynne, secretary of the Albert of Chamber of Commerce, officiated at yesterday's meeting after a long absence due to illness.

The he said, preaking in the Mormon Tah. "I tablete the men of the United States." I tablete the men of the Ninety-first," he said, speaking in the Mormon Tabernacle, where the Royal party was taken for a special organ recital. "I want the men of this famous fighting division to know that they have the gratinge of the Belgian nation," he declared.

King Albert's special train arrived here shortly before 5 o'clock, and the party was taken in automobiles for a trip through the city's streets and thence to the Mormon tabernacle.

There were few formalities beyond the welcomes by Governor Bamberger and Mayor Ferry. The special train then 10 med to Ogden, where a brief stop was made.

"At this moment we face another danger. The people are fearful; our workmen have no time to reflect: they are simple. All thought that as soon as the peace was signed we would be going on a universal pienic. Unfortunately things are quite different. The necessities of life are as dear as they were during the war and in some instances dearer. Many of our workmen have refused to work for the enemy. Seventy thousand are being hed in Germany, having refused an engagement to work there. Some were sent home when the Germans decided that they were incapable of useful work, and those came back as witnesses telling what their companions had to suffer in Germany.

Mr. Bodanzky's Influence Is Shown in First Concert of New Symphony Orchestra

By H. E. Krehbiel

It was probably because Mr. Artur Bodanzky owes a double allegiance this season—to the Metropolitan Opera Company, primarily, and, secondarily, to the New Symphony Orchestra—that the first of the latter organization's concerts took place in Carnegie Hall last night, the date being much earlier than has been customarily assigned to meetings of this class. That the public was ripe for the occasion, however, was evidenced by the size and character of the audience. It was distinctively a musical one, filled with a kindly feeling toward the conductor, but inclined also to weigh with some care the offerings which he brought. In its personal attitude it was disposed to enthusiasm; in its relation to the music and its performance, which means that it did not explode with rapture at every opportune and inopportune moment, as is usually the case now that composers and performers are accounted as little company

Care for detail rather than spontaneity and warmth and eloquence of utterance marked the playing; but these qualities are not likely long to remain hidden with so zealous a musician as Mr. Bodanzky at the conductor's desk. It is his personality which must show the new organization entitled to a permanent place in the cit,'s musical life. The concert will be repeated this afternoon. It was probably because Mr. Artur
